ENOUGH STEAM TO BURST MAINS

That is Declaration of Supt. Brown,
But he Didn't Turn on Fire Pressure Sunday Morning.

DIDN'T WANT TO "WASTE" IT

Says Fire Engines Were to do Work
And he Had no Orders to The Contrary.

The latest developments in the fire farce show the following things: that Supt. Brown didn't know whether a shed or the whole city was on fire; that he supposed the fire engine could take care of the fire, because that was the arrangement made by Mayor Black, even though there were two alarms; that Engineer Frank Joyce attempted to prime the water pumps, which were pumping about as much air as water; that no one at the plant knows at what height the water stands in the reservoir when the gravity flows ceases and the water has to be lifted by the pumps and lastly there was enough steam up the morning of the fire to burst the mains with pressure.

Supt. Frank Brown says that he came to the plant last Sunday morning after he heard the first alarm. He heard the second alarm, he says, and didn't turn on the fire pressure. That is, he didn't order Engineer Joyce to turn it on. He said no one sent him word to turn it on. He depended on the fire engines taking care of the fire, because Stewart Beale, one of the engineers had been sent to the fire engine house by Mayor Black to be held in readiness to run the engines and the other engineers were working twelve hour shifts.

A record of the steam gauge shows that there was a hundred and thirty pounds of steam up from two o'clock to six o'clock Sunday morning. Supt. Brown was asked if that was correct and he said it was. He was asked how much of a water pressure that steam would make.

"Enough to burst the mains," he replied.

"Why didn't you turn it on?" he was asked.

"We didn't know they needed it," he answered.

"Isn't it the rule at the plant to turn on the fire pressure when an alarm is sounded?"

"Yes, but they took an engineer away from us and took him down to the fire engine house to run the engine. We thought that the engine would take care of the fire."

"Didn't you suppose there was a big fire when the second alarm was sounded?"

"We didn't know whether it was a shed or what it was burning. We had been told that the fire engines would take care of the fires. No one notified us to turn on the fire pressure."

Engineer Joyce, who was on duty that night, was asked if that was correct, in his opinion, that a hundred and thirty pounds of steam were enough to burst the mains.

"Yes, it is enough," he said, "but what are you going to do if you haven't got any water?"

He was asked if he did not have seven and a half feet and he replied that there was that much in the reservoir. He then explained that the pump which was running was pumping air about half of the time and that it lost its priming. He said that he tried to prime it and failed. Then he let the thing stand there, according to his own declarations.

When questioned as to why the fire pressure had not been turned on, Supt. Brown had not offered the excuse that an attempt had been made to prime the engine so as to put on a fire pressure, but had been fruitless. Engineer Joyce this morning asked Supt. Brown if he did not remember that he (Joyce) had told him (Brown) that he had attempted to prime the engine and failed. Supt. Brown just looked at the engineer and didn't answer. Supt. Brown said something about the people clamoring for water all the time and that he thought it would be better to save it.

The bottom of the reservoir, according to most of the men at the plant, is several feet lower than the level of the pump. Just exactly how many feet it is no one knows. A pipe feeding the pumps runs into the reservoir and then down to within a few inches of the bottom.

It is explained that whenever the level of the water in the reservoir is above the point where the pipe from the pumps enters the reservoir, the water will flow to the pumps because

P.O. FIXTURES TO ARRIVE TONIGHT

Postmaster Hunt Buys Some Second Hand Equipment—Plans Location Will be Used Temporarily.

ALL RECORDS DESTROYED

Fixtures for the postoffice are expected to arrive this evening. Postmaster Hunt was in Indianapolis yesterday and purchased some second hand equipment from the Keyless Lock company. They will be installed as soon as they arrive. The postoffice will be kept in the Commercial block room temporarily until some definite arrangements are made.

Since the postoffice safe was opened yesterday afternoon and it was found that all of the contents were ruined, with the exception of the money, postoffice employees say that it is very similar to opening a new office. All of the records were destroyed so that it is impossible to determine how much stock was destroyed. In order to learn the loss at the end of the month the sales from the stock sold after the fire will be subtracted from the sales for the month.

DELEGATES ARE TO BE ELECTED

Modern Woodmen Will Meet Tomorrow Night to Arrange to Attend
Log Rolling in Indianapolis.

CONNERSVILLE TEAM COMING

The Modern Woodmen local camp will have an important meeting tomorrow night, and a large attendance of the members is desired. There will be three applications for membership to be acted upon and delegates to elect to the Central Indiana Log Rolling association, which meets at Indianapolis, August 16.

The Connersville camp is going to send a team of Foresters, numbering twenty-five, all uniformed in white duck and a large delegation besides.

The coming Log Rolling promises to be the largest ever held in the state and the Rushville camp is to be well represented.

The Log Rolling will be held in Fairview Park and fifteen camps in the Capitol city are making arrangements to give all visiting members and their families a day of great enjoyment.

SALE BROUGHT OVER $32,000

Some of Prices Were Disappointment as Bulls Were Expected to Sell
For $5,000.

TOTAL AS LARGE AS LAST YEAR

More Cattle Offered However Yesterday—Only Two Head Purchased by Rushville People.

The total sales at the Walker Jersey sale yesterday amounted to approximately $32,000. The sale yesterday was a slight disappointment to Walker and Vannice as they expected the cattle would bring higher prices especially the bulls. The sale last year totaled about the same as the one yesterday. This year more stock was sold than last year.

The only thing that brought the total of this year's sale up to that of last year was the fact that the calves brought such fine prices. Calves only a few months old brought $250 and $300. The two feature bulls of the sale were sold for $1,000 each. Mr. Walker fully expected each animal to sell for not less than $5,000 and was greatly disappointed when they failed to bring the price. Mr. Walker maintains that the men who purchased the bull got a big bargain as they were easily worth that the price paid, in fact they cost more than this on the Isle of Jersey.

One cow that was expected to bring $2500 was sold for only $500. On an average the price was lower than last year but the fact that more cattle were listed this year brought the total sales up to that of last year. Of the 106 head of stock only two were purchased by Rushville people, the rest going out of the state. John Boyd and Mrs. B. W. Riley of this city were the only local buyers, each buying one cow.

The crowd of foreign buyers was as large as in former years. The White Horse Stock farm, located at Paola, Penn., was one of the large purchasers. All the stock will be held here a few days before being shipped.

Most of the cattlemen from a distance went to Muncie this morning to attend the sale of J. R. Rutherford and Sons at the Buck Creek Estate Farm. Eighty head of imported cattle are offered for sale by the Rutherford people.

AUTOMOBILE IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

G. C. Skillman Washes Clutch With Gasoline and This is Ignited by the Spark.

A large five passenger Oakland touring car, owned by G. C. Skillman, a prominent farmer living near Sandusky, burned up Tuesday when it caught afire, says the Greensburg News.

When one of the clutches refused to work properly Mr. Skillman washed and cleaned it out with some gasoline, the same as he had often done before. He then started the engine and in some manner the sparks connected with the gasoline in the clutch and in an instant the machine was enveloped in flames. So rapidly did the car burn that all efforts to put out the flames failed. The machine was purchased two years ago by Mr. Skillman at a cost of $1,800. He carried $1,200 insurance.

WATSON THREAT IS SUFFICIENT

C. L. Mulhall Retracts Statement and Completely Vindicates Former Congressman.

SAYS HE WAS "MISTAKEN"

Declares Watson Never Received
Retainer From N. A. M. Before Leaving Congress.

Just as former Representative James E. Watson of this city had put the finishing touches to the complaint he intended to file with the United States District Attorney, charging Martin M. Mulhall, star witness in the Senate lobby investigation, with perjury, Mulhall made a specific retraction on the witness stand of the statement which led him (Watson) to decide to prosecute him and which completely vindicated Watson.

Monday night, after Watson heard that Mulhall had testified that Watson had accepted a stipend from the National Tariff Conference to secure the acceptance by Congress of a tariff commission provision in the Payne-Aldrich bill four years ago, the Indianian announced his intention to take legal action against the informer against the National Association of Manufacturers.

He immediately proceeded to draw up his complaint and was ready to lay it before the District Attorney when Mulhall recanted. It was immediately after the recess for luncheon that Mulhall, resuming the witness stand, volunteered this statement:

"If the committee will allow, I desire to make a correction in my testimony. I made the statement here that I paid to James E. Watson of Indiana, the sum of $500 for his services as a lobbyist for the National Association of Manufacturers before Mr. Watson's term as Congressman expired. I have looked over some correspondence and made some examination regarding the matter, and am now convinced that this money was not paid to Watson until after his term in Congress."

"Then you were mistaken when you stated that Mr. Watson was in the pay of the National Association of Manufacturers while a member of Congress?" asked Senator Reed.

"I was mistaken about the money being paid to him before his term ended, but he was working diligently for bills avored by the association long before his membership ceased."

Mr. Mulhall was on the stand yesterday morning and reiterated the statement he made Monday, that he paid Watson $500 in the winter of 1908-09 prior to the retirement from the House of the Indiana member.

Evidently he had not learned yet that Watson had decided to ask the District Attorney for an indictment against him. Although when Senator Reed asked him if he could produce the canceled check which he had claimed to have drawn, Mulhall suddenly recalled that it had not been a check but cash which he paid to Mr. Watson.

It is thought that during the luncheon recess Mulhall was apprised of Watson's plan to have him indicted, if possible, inasmuch as he took the first opportunity to retract. Yesterday evening when the former Indiana Representative heard of Mulhall's correction of his testimony he concluded not to go to the District Attorney with his complaint.

It has been such loose statements as the one referring to his payment of money to Watson that has discredited much that Mulhall has been testifying to.

Yesterday afternoon in the cor-

GETS ROUSING RECEPTION

Annual Catholic Carnival Is Well Attended First Night.

The annual Catholic carnival opened with a rousing reception from Rushville people last night. It will continue for three more nights. There are the usual attractions to be found on the grounds, including the country store which is always popular. The baby rack, refreshment stands, Japanese bowling alley and merry-go-round enjoyed big patronage last night. Although it was the first night the vaudeville troupe played to large audiences last night. The band concerts by the Rushville musicians attracted many people.

HOLY GRAIL HERE MAY ENTER RACE

Will Hold Meeting Tonight to Determine Whether to Participate in Relay.

TO RUN INTO INDIANAPOLIS

Rushville Knights of the Holy Grail will meet tonight to determine whether or not they will enter a team of sprinters in the first annual relay of the order which will be run into Indianapolis Saturday.

Whether a team is entered from here depends largely on whether arrangements can be made for three automobiles to carry the Knights to a point within four miles of the Monument in Indianapolis, where the race begins. It is hoped by the Knights that the services of three automobiles will be offered because they haven't funds to hire machines.

According to Dr. Perry Edwards Powell, founder and supreme merlin of the order, chairman of the committee in charge of the arrangements for the day, the cities that will be represented in the big event are Franklin, Terre Haute, Brownsburg, Martinsville and Anderson. In all more than two hundred and fifty runners will participate in the race, and thirty of the state grail castles will be represented.

EXPECTS GREAT THINGS OF BETTS

County Superintendent C. M. George Believes Institute Lecturer Will be Very Popular.

PRAISE BY SUPT. OTIS E. HALL

C. M. George, county superintendent of the public schools, is expecting great things of Dr. George Herbert Betts, who will be the regular county teachers institute lecturer during chautauqua week this year. Dr. Betts is head of the department of education in Cornell College at Vernon, Iowa.

Otis E. Hall, superintendent of the Montgomery county schools, has written Supt. George that he expects to attend the institute here to hear Dr. Betts. He says of the lecturer in his letter: "You can expect big things from Betts. We had him and we shall never forget him. I believe half of my teachers would be willing to go some distance to hear him again. I hope to hear each one of his lectures while with you."

Montgomery county was the first in the state to have a county agent. Mr. George expects to have Supt. Hall tell the teachers of the value of a county agent and some of the things he can accomplish.

SANITARIUM TO BE REBUILT

Charles Bundy, President of Spice-land Company, Says Building
Will be Started at Once.

INSTITUTION IS HIT HARD

Destroyed at Beginning of Season
When Most Patients Come. Everyone Escape.

Charles Bundy of Spiceland, manager of the sanitarium which burned to the ground yesterday at a loss estimated at near twenty thousand dollars, says that the structure will be rebuilt at once. Mr. Bundy is president and stockholder in the company.

Mr. Bundy, speaking for the stockholders, said that the sanitarium would be rebuilt immediately on a more extensive scale than the destroyed one.

The corporation is known as the Spiceland Sanitarium company and the stockholders are C. S. Bundy, president and general manager, Mose Vandemark and wife and Charles Bundy. These four control the 250 shares.

When it was seen that the fire was spreading so rapidly and that the sanitarium was doomed, the firemen turned their attention to surrounding buildings for there was much fear expressed that flying sparks would set fire to them. Water was poured on all buildings believed to be in danger and the only place that suffered to any extent from the fire was Frank Pierce's big red barn, which was badly scorched by the intense heat. Water was continually poured over the roof and sides of it and thus it was kept from bursting into flames.

The nearest house to the scene of the conflagration was that of Mrs. Emma Charles, directly across the street, but it was not damaged.

The burning of the sanitarium just at the time when the patients begin coming for treatment, is especially disheartening to Mr. Bundy and it also gave many people an excellent

TO PILOT AIRSHIP OVER SEA IN 1915

Count Zeppelin Himself May Direct Atlantic Flight

FOR PANAMA EXHIBITION.

According to Plans, Two Machines Are to Be on View at San Francisco Exposition, It Is Said—Flight to United States, It Is Estimated, Will Take Three Days.

Count Zeppelin is seriously planning to drive one of his airships across the Atlantic, according to private advices received in New York lately by an aeronautic authority. The news is made more dramatic because of the fact that the letters say that Count Zeppelin himself will pilot the huge ship if his health, at seventy-seven years, continues to remain good.

The report, which originates in a highly reliable source, says the trip will be made in the summer of 1915, by which time the engineers at the great Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen expect to have completed an airship twice the size of the present Zeppelins. The ship is to be 1,000 feet long and fifty-two feet beam, with five to six motors, and the time estimated for the ocean passage is three days.

The plan contemplates that the airship will follow the ocean steamship lane, so that the air craft will be in continuous wireless communication with ocean vessels in case of emergency.

Airship's Powers Known.

Dr. Colman, director of the German Airship Navigation company, which operates the passenger Zeppelins in Germany, has announced that the radius of the Zeppelin airship is now known so definitely, owing to its conservation system for retaining its gas, that there is no longer any doubt of the airship's ability to cross the Atlantic.

The same information says it is practically assured that at least two Zeppelin airships will be sent to the Panama exposition at San Francisco by way of the ocean and overcontinental flight. Zeppelin engineers, it is said, will visit the United States this year to test the atmospheric currents and decide on the best route across the continent and to select bases for replenishment of the airships en route in case the heat of the American plains has a more powerful effect on the ships' gas supply than over the plains of the upper Rhine valley.

Zeppelin May Come Here.

Count Zeppelin, so the private correspondence says, may come to the United States with his engineers. Some time back the count denied a similar report that he was contemplating the achievement of crossing the ocean.

Expert aeronauts in this country who have visited Germany and have been passengers on the Zeppelins and are acquainted with many of the commanders of the Zeppelin airships and members of the technical staff have returned here, convinced that the development of the Zeppelin airship has very nearly approached the long expected perfection that would enable it to traverse the ocean.

JAPS SWARMING IN HAWAII.

They, With Chinese and Koreans, Make Bulk of Population.

More than half of the population of Hawaii is composed of Japanese, Chinese and Koreans, according to statistics of the thirteenth census not heretofore made public. Of the total population of 191,909 the Japanese numbered 79,675, or 41.5 per cent. Japanese, Chinese and Koreans combined numbered 105,882, or 55.2 per cent. From 1900 to 1910 the Japanese increased 52.8 per cent; the Chinese decreased 15.9 per cent.

Caucasians in the Hawaiian Islands numbered 44,048, being 22.9 per cent of the total population. Of these 22,301 were Portuguese, 4,990 Porto Rican, 1,990 Spanish and 14,867 of other Caucasian descent. Pure Hawaiians numbered 26,041, a decrease of 12.6 per cent in the ten years. Of the Japanese males twenty-one years old or more, numbering 41,718, only eleven had become naturalized. Of the foreign born male population of Hawaii twenty-one years or older 91.9 per cent were Chinese, Japanese and Korean.

More than half of the entire population cannot speak English, the highest portion being Korean, 81.7 per cent, and only slightly lower among the Japanese, 79 per cent.

Statistics of occupation and the ownership of homes are not included in the report.

GIVES FIGURES ON ELECTIONS

Local Option Statistics Since First of the Year.

"DRYS" SHOW HEAVY GAINS

According to Figures Given Out by the Superintendent of State Anti-Saloon League, Sixty-Four of the Eighty-Nine Option Elections Held Thus Far During the Year Have Gone in Favor of Opponents of the Saloon.

Indianapolis, July 23.—According to figures given out by Edward S. Shumaker, superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon League, since the first of the year out of eighty-nine local option elections, sixty-four have resulted in victory for the "drys" and twenty-five for the "wets." Twelve saloons have been gained and sixty lost as the result of these elections, making a net loss of forty-eight saloons in Indiana. In seventy out of the eighty-nine places where elections were held this year, elections were held two years ago. Of these seventy, according to Mr. Shumaker, the total "wet" majorities are 34 per cent less and the "dry" majorities 69 per cent greater than they were at the last election.

BALKAN STATEMENTS DO NOT CORRESPOND

Situation At Adrianople Not Clearly Defined.

London, July 23.—In regard to the situation at Adrianople, there is the greatest conflict of statements. It was officially announced at Constantinople that the Turks had entered the city and that Kirk Killeshah also had been occupied by the Ottoman troops. The porte has even appointed Hajji Abdul Bey, former minister of the interior, as governor, and he has left for his new post.

On the other hand, a dispatch from Sofia says the report that the Turks have reoccupied Adrianople is false. It is said that the report was spread by fugitive Bulgarian officers, who fled when they saw Enver Bey's cavalry reconnoitering near the city, as they thought the entire Ottoman army was going to attack the place. It is said at Sofia that communication with Adrianople has been restored and that the Bulgarian commander there reports that the Turks retired after making a reconnaissance. The frightened civil functionaries installed at Adrianople by the Bulgarians have been ordered to return to their posts. The dispatch from Sofia, however, was filed the night before the entry of the Turkish troops was announced.

TRAPPED IN CONVICT CAGE

Thirty-Five Negroes Burned to Death in Mississippi.

Jackson, Miss., July 23.—Trapped by flames in the second floor of an antiquated convict cage, thirty-five negro prisoners were burned to death at the Oakley convict farm, twenty miles from here.

Applied Carbolic Acid to Kill Chiggers. Princeton, Ind., July 23.—John Haen, suffering severely from chiggers, was told to put diluted carbolic acid on the bites. He did not dilute the acid enough and the skin was burned from a large part of his body.

Every Man His Own Surgeon. Elkhart, Ind., July 24.—Roy Blakesley, a Lake Shore shopman, reset his own dislocated hip after he was injured when working alone. He locked the foot between a car wheel and the rail and by well directed maneuvers pulled the hip back into place. The physician who examined him later declared the job was "O. K."

Oil Boom in Vigo. Terre Haute, Ind., July 23.—The oil boom, following the coming in of a well in Sullivan county, just over the line from Vigo county, has started a boom in Vigo county as well. Eastern oil men are in the country southwest of Terre Haute taking leases.

The Patients All Escaped. Knightstown, Ind., July 23.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the Spice-land sanatorium. The building was valued at $10,000. There were about thirty-five patients in the hospital. They lost all their clothing, but all were rescued without injury.

Mirrors at Road Crossing. Mirrors at road crossings for the protection of automobiles are commencing to be used in England, it is stated, and the results are very good. They are being put in places where the crossings are especially dangerous, and the use of large mirrors allows the driver to see the reflection of cars which are coming in other directions. The method will probably be extended in the future, as it is likely to avoid many accidents and will be well worth the small cost of putting in.

ARCH LOBBYIST CLEARS WATSON

Mulhall Withdraws Damaging Charges.

DECIDED TO CHANGE HIS MIND

Sober Reflection, Following Threats of Prosecution For Criminal Libel, Seemed to Bring the Colonel to the Conclusion That James E. Watson Did Not Take Employment With N. A. M. Until His Term Had Expired.

Washington, July 23.—Late yesterday afternoon Colonel Mulhall sought the indulgence of the lobby investigation committee long enough to withdraw the charge which he had twice made that former Representative Jas. E. Watson of Indiana received a retainer from the tariff commission committee of 1909 while still a member of the Sixtieth congress.

Monday and again yesterday morning, Colonel Mulhall swore to the committee that while Mr. Watson was still a member of the house and Speaker Cannon's right bower, he had dickered with officers of the National Association of Manufacturers for the office of legislative agent to the committee which was to be created to facilitate the incorporation of a tariff commission provision in the Payne-Aldrich bill. He swore further that when Henry E. Miles, active head of the tariff commission movement, decided to engage the services of Watson he (Mulhall) lent Mr. Miles $500 with which to pay Mr. Watson his retainer. He insisted that this transaction was accomplished in the midst of the final session of the Sixtieth congress.

Mr. Watson made up his mind if Mulhall persisted in his course and did not correct the testimony in this respect he would endeavor to have him indicted for criminal libel. Early in yesterday's hearing Mulhall reiterated the charge of the payment of the retainer to Watson. His statement, however, was not quite so positive as on the day before, but he was still insistent that the payment antedated Mr. Watson's retirement from public service.

Then in the afternoon session Mulhall interrupted the regular order of the investigation to inject a withdrawal of the charge against Mr. Watson. He said he wished to have the record corrected in this respect. He made a complete retraction of his previous statements, contradicting himself flatly. He told the committee he had become convinced that his statement had been made in error and that Mr. Watson was not the recipient of any fee or retainer and that the adjustment as to retainer and periodical compensation and contingent fee was not made until along in April. This materially relieves the situation for Colonel Mulhall, for Mr. Watson's ire was aroused and he had determined on the harshest of measures.

The examination of the colonel yesterday dealt exclusively with his activities during the pendency of the Payne-Aldrich law in congress. It is generally believed that the present week will see the end of the direct examination of Mulhall. The disclosures which he promised are falling short of the sensation which he promised, and the committee is getting very tired. Wherever the charges seem to be serious or wherever Mulhall has sought to strengthen his case by direct testimony not embodied in the letters themselves, he has brought from the injured parties a furious storm of denials and counter-proofs usually of sufficient stability to discredit in large measure his allegations.

HAS DEPARTED FOR EUROPE

Alleged Youthful Forger Writes Back From Boston.

Boonville, Ind., July 23.—John Castle, youthful alleged embezzler and check forger, who is reputed to have swindled Evansville and other banks and business men in this section out of sums estimated as aggregating $20,000, has sailed for Europe, according to advices received here from him. He wrote to his relatives here and to his attorney, saying that he was in Boston and would sail immediately for Europe.

From facts which have come to light since his disappearance two weeks ago, Castle worked his confidence game as shrewdly as it has ever been done. Wherever he went and whatever he did, he believed in prosperity, and, carrying out this view, had a different suit of clothes for every day.

He bought an interest in an Evansville floral company and obtained a credit by which he was able to present flowers daily to numerous popular girls in every town he visited. In every town in which he attempted operations he sought only the best company, always holding his head high and living the life of an exemplary young man. He did not drink, chew or smoke, and he went to church.

Two Boys and a Gun. Bloomfield, Ind., July 23.—Clifford Hannum, aged eighteen, son of Jehu Hannum, was shot and instantly killed by his friend, Clyde Wesner. No one seems to know how it happened. It is said Wesner believed the weapon was not loaded, and pointed it toward Hannum.

Incompetency.

It is conceded on all sides that if high pressure had been given at the beginning of the fire last Sunday morning the Masonic block could have been saved with but small damage to the grocery store in which the fire started. It is the practice of all city water works to put on fire pressure as soon as the first alarm is given. The boilers and engines should always be in shape so this can be done without any delay. Otherwise the city is paying "competent" salaries for "incompetent" service.

It matters little how much water there was in the reservoir at the time the fire broke out. Whatever there was should be sent out under high pressure. It is of the most value at the beginning of the fire. By the time the seven and a half feet of water was exhausted the engine could have been placed at the fire cistern or the race and continued the pressure when the city water was all gone.

But Henry Joyce, who was the engineer at the plant the morning of the fire, says that twenty pounds of pressure was all he could get. About forty pounds commercial pressure and sixty pounds fire pressure. We quote from yesterday's Daily Republican:

"Mr. Joyce was asked why seven and a half feet of water in the reservoir which he says he had Saturday night and Sunday morning, was not enough to get even a decent commercial pressure. He said that in that case the pumps had to first lift the water and to force it through the mains, and that they were not equal to that task."

This statement is declared by many people to be a mistake. It is pointed out that he either does not know or else he purposely made a mistake to shield somebody. The feed pipe from the reservoir to the pumps runs from the bottom of the reservoir. The Republican has absolute assurances of this fact. The pipe stands about four inches above the floor of the reservoir and then runs up a number of feet to the level of the pumps.

This explanation demands an explanation. Henry Joyce offered this excuse for not putting fire pressure in the mains. He is positive that there was about seven and a half feet of water in the reservoir. Then it follows that there should have been fire pressure. It is very apparent that the true reason for the lack of fire pressure has not been given the public. Who is there of us who can foretell the recurrence of the calamity that befell the city last Sunday morning? Shall we be prepared to cope with it when it comes? Undoubtedly we should.

Further proof that the truth has not been adhered to in every particular statements regarding the events of the two nights preceding the fire is found in the fact that Henry Joyce, engineer at the plant, and Frank Brown, the superintendent, tell different stories. What they say in regard to the discovery and turning off of the gates at the plant to hold the water in the reservoir after most of it had flowed out Saturday morning differs materially although the same end is gained and the most important point is not touched on. But at the same time each one yesterday gave their version of the events of last Saturday morning as facts. They can't both be right. Today Mr. Joyce says he was misunderstood.

That there is ample right to believe that some gross neglect was the fault when there was no fire pressure is found in very recent revelations concerning the methods used in operating the plant. During the low stage of the water two wells in the Jones pasture which have been drilled and equipped at heavy expense have been in disuse simply because some very simple repairs were not made.

Supt. Brown says that the work of repairing them was started yesterday. He declares that they have been running, but admits that they have been pumping very little water since the flood because of needed repairs. Nevertheless, if the pumps have been running, they were so silent that they could not be heard when one had his ear against the structure covering. The pump on the well which is running can be heard very distinctly.

Supt. Brown says if those two wells had been running normally, they would not have aided the fire pressure. Henry Joyce says there was only twenty pounds of pressure at the plant last Sunday morning. It is claimed for these new wells in the Jones pasture that they will force water into the mains against any pressure up to forty pounds. Then the pumps automatically stop. All these things being true, those two inactive wells would have been forcing streams with forty pounds of pressure into the mains. And they are located within a very few blocks of the fire. Wouldn't they have helped some? And a little help is all that would have been needed at the beginning.

And in addition to all this if those two wells had been repaired immediately after the flood they would have been pumping water into the mains Saturday, thereby increasing the supply, on which, Mr. Joyce says, there was such a hard pull and there might have been more water in the reservoir Sunday morning.

There are other glaring examples of neglect. After the new set of boilers were installed to save them from being lined up from the city water, a pipe line was run from the river so that river water, which is softer, could be used in the boilers. The council made this improvement on the recommendation of A. T. Mahin, then superintendent, who said the line could be run on the sum that would be saved in a short while on the compound that was used in the city water. The fact now leaks out that this arrangement is in disuse because one little valve on the pump needs repair. In the meantime a costly set of steam boilers will go the route of the old ones.

"But," say Supt. Brown's friends, "the new superintendent is working day and night (which he is not, but we presume they were figuratively speaking) and you must give him a chance. He has to learn. He has more work than one man can do and he has to take things as they come."

Any or all these excuses are misnomers. They are not excuses. If Mr. Brown is not capable, he should be supplanted by one who is. The city of Rushville is not running a school for water works superintendents. He should know what to do when he enters upon the work. And if it is more than one man can do to superintend the water works, he should have an assistant.

But we do not believe it to be the case. Other men have superintended the plant and have not found it so strenuous that they have not had to postpone for months needed repairs. We honestly believe that the new superintendent is incompetent and many people share the belief. We have nothing but the friendliest feelings for Mr. Brown, but the people of Rushville can not afford to keep him at the rate of sixty thousand dollars a fire.

Neglect has characterized the present city administration. The pavement in West Third street was torn up a few months ago to repair the water mains. Crushed stone was put in and the brick never replaced. The pavement at the corner of Main and First streets was cracked by the heat more than a month ago. It has never been repaired. Water meters were put in the cement sidewalks down town 10 months ago. A block of cement was taken up in each instance and has never been replaced. There are other examples. For instance, Street Commissioner Kelley has the brick streets swept when he likes. He likes to very seldom.

It is suggested that the city might employ A. T. Mahin, the former superintendent of the plant who was discharged for political reasons to fix the electrical pumps on the two wells in Jones pasture, since he has been called to Linton, Ind., to make repairs on similar pumps.

It is a patent fact that there has been entirely too much politics in the administration of the affairs of the city. There is no doubt but that it has injured the administration. If that were the only fault, it might pass. But the people of Rushville have suffered. And they may suffer again.

The retraction of Col. Mulhall's statement that James E. Watson received money from the N. A. M. while in Congress clearly shows the intention of the "expose." Surely Col. Mulhall can not have much consideration from the people who believe in honesty and fairness.

The Indianapolis Star spreads the story of Mulhall's charges yesterday that Watson received money while in Congress from the N. A. M. under a big two-column head and made a big display of it. Today they carry a story of Mulhall's retraction under an ordinary head in which only veiled mention is made of the retraction. One reading the headline would not know that Mulhall had made the retraction. Such is the fairness of the Indianapolis Star.

Critics of Secretary Bryan find he has been out of Washington a third of the time since he took office. He is worth, then, about four thousand dollars a year.

spondence which was read into the record Mulhall spoke of using prominent prelates in the furtherance of his activities against organized labor.

Other testimony yesterday concerning Watson consisted of the introduction of letters, mostly written by Mulhall in which Watson was discussed for a cabinet position. It also brought to light the fact which was known in many quarters in 1909 that Mr. Watson refused two foreign posts.

On date of March 17, 1909, Mulhall reported to Secretary Schwedtman of the National Association of Manufacturers: "Watson also told me that the Speaker had a long interview yesterday with the President and that he went there especially to get some place for Mr. Watson that would be pleasing and desirable to him. Mr. Watson stated that the President offered him the ambassadorship to Cuba or the governorship of Porto Rico, both of which he declined, for the speaker told the President that he would not allow Watson to leave the country on any foreign mission, so they think now that they can induce Mr. Watson to take the United States district attorneyship of southern Indiana, with headquarters at Indianapolis, and this appears to be to his liking, for it will give him a chance to be in his home state and to make a fight for the senatorship, which he claims he wishes to make against Beveridge above anything else.

"Watson told me that the President had agreed with the speaker to give him any position that he wishes that is not filled, so that inside the next few days he will know for a certainty just about where he will land."

Col. Mulhall was not accurate, to put it mildly. For example, there is no "ambassadorship" to Cuba, that being a ministerial post. In the second place there is no Federal district of Southern Indiana, the whole State being in a single district.

opportunity to advance the claim that Spiceland needs better fire protection. One woman was heard to say that she "always had said that Spiceland had better have some fire fighting equipment rather than electric lights."

When the fire broke out there were about twenty patients in the sanitarium and attention was directed toward them first of all and almost before the fire department arrived all were safely out of the burning building. The fire occurred just at the time several of the patients were taking their baths and when the cry of fire was shrieked through the house a hurried retreat was made.

Ed Lynch, in a talk afterward, was asked if he had dressed after hearing the fire alarm. "Dressed," he exclaimed, "Well hardly, I just jumped out of the tubs into a bath robe and beat it across the lawn."

Among the patients taking treatment at the sanitarium were the following: W. R. Kelley, Waynesville, Ohio, John Hiser, Sidney, Ohio, Mrs. F. A. Brown, Richmond, Mrs. Emma Clark, Richmond; A. M. Foster, Spiceland; L. A. Compton, Newcastle; L. L. Burr and wife, Newcastle; A. D. Hoover, Oakville; A. B. Baker and wife, Newcastle; Albert Miller, Cowan; Ella E. Minter, Richmond; Sam Merdick, Waynesville, Ohio; Ed Foster, Spiceland; Ed Lynch and wife, Delphi, Ind.; and G. M. Brown of Duque, Iowa.

The people of Spiceland extended every hospitality to the patients and offers of places to sleep and eat were heard on all sides. Mrs. Taylor, one of the bath attendants at the sanitarium, will take a large number of the inmates to her home for meals.

The fire was first discovered on the west side of the Sanitarium and where it had already made great headway and was rapidly eating through the roof. The fire department was hurriedly called and they made heroic efforts to arrest the leaping tongues of fire before they reached the east side of the main building, but to no avail. The wood was very dry and it burned like tinder, and in about two hours the entire structure was in ashes.

The fire department is equipped with only a small hook and ladder wagon and these were brought into play, but succeeded in only delaying the rapidly spreading flames. Volunteer firemen started a bucket brigade and chemicals were poured repeatedly on the doomed buildings with no noticeable consequence.

INJURIES RESULT IN MAN'S DEATH

Thomas Allison, Victim of Accident Near Gwynneville, Expires at Relatives Home.

LEAVE A FEW RELATIVES

Thomas Allison, 72 years old who fell from a buggy near Gwynneville last Wednesday, and was seriously injured, is dead at the home of his half-brother, Alonzo Allison, near Connersville, his death being traced directly to the injuries he suffered at that time. He was with a few men taking a string of horses to Indianapolis and his actions at the time led to the belief that he might be suffering from the effects of some drug, but the indications later showed that he had been suffering from successive strokes of paralysis all morning before the fall from the buggy in the Gwynneville community. Mr. Allison was a bachelor and had spent most of his life as a resident of Laurel.

Besides the half-brother mentioned, he leaves three others—John of Laurel, James of Kokomo and Marion of Laurel and a half-sister, Mrs. Malissa Northern. Other distant relatives and numerous friends also survive. The remains were taken to Laurel and there the funeral was held this morning at nine o'clock.

VALUE OF GOOD ROADS IS SHOWN

Farmers Can Move Grain at Any Season When Price is Best if Highways Are Passable.

CAUSES OF FLUCTUATIONS

Where bad roads prevail, farmers are forced to move their crops, not when the market price is favorable, but when the roads are favorable, and frequently at heavy pecuniary loss as a result, according to the office of public roads of the department of agriculture in Washington. In a statement issued today it cites specific cases of such losses, the information being based on information obtained by its experts.

"Excessive fluctuations in market prices are seldom due to overproduction," the statement asserts. "They frequently take place in regions where the local production does not equal the consumption. There are counties rich in agricultural possibilities, burdened with bad roads, where the annual incoming shipments of food exceed the outgoing shipments at the ratio of four to one. Many such counties, with improved roads, would not only become self-supporting, but would ship products to other markets."

GIRLS DIE IN DREAD FIRE TRAP

Three Score Perish In Holocaust.

ESCAPE WAS CUT OFF

Flames Quickly Enveloped Binghamton Overall Plant.

GIRLS PERISH MISERABLY

"Approved Factory Construction" Was No Safeguard.

Binghamton, N. Y., July 23.—The clang of the automatic fire gong, a few minutes before 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon stopped the busy fingers of 125 young girls at work over the machines of the Binghamton Clothing company. They were not startled or alarmed.

A girl on the crowded fourth floor—the top—called laughingly to a friend across the room:

"It's only another one of those old fire drills. I'm not going down into the street dressed as I am and make a show of myself."

The girls, most of them, settled back to work. Two minutes later they were dying miserably in flames and smoke, or crushing each other in hopeless attempts to escape down a single stairway and the two narrow fire ladders. In eighteen minutes the four-story factory of "approved factory construction" was a mass of ashes and embers, walls, roof and supports fallen in.

At least fifty of the girls are dead, their bodies consumed or charred in the smoking debris of the factory. At least fifty more are injured, many fatally. Of the 125 girls on the payroll, only seventeen have been accounted for as uninjured. Twenty-two are in the hospitals. Eight are being cared for in private homes. Possibly some of the others who survived the dreadful rush of flames and smoke or who fought their way to the streets over the bodies of their workmates fled away to their homes before firemen or police could learn their identity. So far, though, it is only guesswork to attempt to say how many actually got out of the fire alive and unhurt.

Death List May Total Seventy.

President Freeman of the overall manufacturing company and his bookkeeper insist that there were less than 125 girls in the factory, since some were on vacation. Fire Chief Hoag says, though, that there were 150 girls close packed on the four floors. So that the estimate of fifty dead is as low as can reasonably be made. When the story is told and the lists are checked up, no one will be surprised if the death roll runs to sixty or seventy.

Three hospitals are caring for the injured, some of whom are so dreadfully burned that they cannot possibly live. Others, whose lives are hoped for, are in frightful agony. Around the hospitals great crowds are saddened by the moans and pitiful cries of the injured girls. Firemen, police and volunteers are digging in the sodden debris of the factory and are taking out not bodies, but pieces of bodies. Of the girls who escaped death or injury, several are near insanity.

Words can do little more than give a dim idea of the shocking fate of those who perished. Not even the Triangle fire in New York city two years ago last March equalled the disaster in this city. Here in a great building of brick and wood, where the floors were piled inches deep with oil-soaked rags and waste, where there was only one stairway and two fire-escapes, 125 girls whose average age was less than twenty had less than eighteen minutes to save their lives. Circumstances and bad fortune made their position hopeless. There seemed to have been no men quick-witted or courageous enough to give instant warning of their awful danger. So that three or four priceless minutes were wasted in their hesitation to appear on the street in their soiled and worn working clothes.

Precious Minutes Lost.

The fire department was tardy in responding, not through any fault of its own, but because the nearest company was at work half way across the city on another alarm. Five minutes were lost there, although it is doubtful if the men and the engines could have done more than stand by. Then, too, the water pressure was low and uncertain, where the very strongest power was required.

But the worst of it was that the fire, which started in the basement, fed on rags and paper and pitchy timber, mushroomed and shot upward through every vent—elevator shafts, stairway and air shafts. So that when the girls actually realized that the automatic alarm was signalling real danger and not merely calling for the formal drill that was meant to show the girls how to get out quickly and safely, they were girdled with fire. Rushing flames came at them through the stairway. Flames curled from every floor over the rungs of the two fire-escapes. A tower of flame leaped from the elevator shaft and billowed over the inflammable stuff by the machines.

Scores died before they could reach stairway or window. Their dresses caught from the burning waste. They dropped and were ashes before the building fell. A few, less than a dozen, won to the windows and leaped to the streets through waves of flame. They were killed by the fall. Many girls who rushed headlong down the stairway gave up their lives before they had made a dozen steps. It was all so horribly quick, so breathlessly sudden, that strong men could not have survived, much less young women with no quick grip on nerve, with little physical strength to fight and scramble.

Walled in by Fire.

They that were saved unhurt or with comparatively slight injuries were the ones who had been lucky enough to be employed on the lower floors. They had time to get out before the overwhelming sweep of fire and smoke conquered elevator, stairway and fire-escapes.

The greatest loss of life took place on the topmost floor, the fourth, where fifty girls sat knee to knee driving the machines that cut and sewed patterns for men's overalls. For them there was not a ghost of a chance. Halted by the complaint of the girl "who didn't want to appear on the street just as she was" (that little vanity cost her life), they were walled in by fire when they finally realized that the alarm was in deadly earnest. The loss of life on the third floor was appalling, for much the same reason. Few girls escaped from either workroom to tell of what preceded the desperate struggle for air and life.

The cause of the fire has not yet been learned. It originated under a stairway in the basement, found rich food, spurted to the first or office floor and then roared aloft. In a flash of time the great factory was ablaze practically from cellar to roof. When the first engines came racing to the scene with Chief Hoag shouting commands to his men, the firemen saw at once that there was little they could do. Fire was running over all floors.

When the Trap Closed In.

Girls were streaming from the entrance on Wall street, some with their clothes afire, all hysterical from fright. All at once occurred what the crowds in the street looked for. Girls appeared at the windows and hurled themselves out. Their bodies were crushed against the brick-paved streets.

Two girls showed against the rosy windows on the Wall street side of the fourth floor. One seemed to be carrying or supporting the other. The larger girl shoved her friend through the window. The body dropped like a stone for sixty feet. The other girl leaped out and was dead when she was picked up.

On the north and east sides the girls were trying desperately to reach the fire-escapes. From the roofs of nearby buildings people who first reached such elevations saw the girls staggering and weaving over the floors, their arms crossed before their eyes, vainly trying to protect their sight from flame and smoke. The watchers saw them labor toward the windows and fall before they could get there, overwhelmed by the rush of flames. Very few of the girls had time even to get to the fire-escapes. The flames rushed upward so suddenly and spread so quickly that there was no time for organized action, and the trap closed in on its victims.

WALL STREET MOURNS DEATH OF A. N. BRADY

Another of the Leading Financial Forces Gone.

Albany, N. Y., July 23.—Last night, at 8:30 o'clock, Anthony N. Brady, world-famous traction and gas financier, died at the Carlton hotel in London, according to a cable received by E. Palmer Cavit of Albany, son-in-law of Mr. Brady.

Anthony Nicholas Brady was known as "the Mole of Wall street." He was a free lance in the financial world, and his methods of going underneath things to get what he wanted earned him the sobriquet which stuck to him through life. Financiers used to say that they did not know just what Brady was doing until they were confronted with the results. Frequently they did not like what they saw.

Brady was what is known as a self-made man. He started out on his business career as cashier in the Delavan House barber shop at Albany. He ended it a recognized power in the world of finance. Born in France of Irish parents sixty-eight years ago, Brady came to this country at an early age. He got a smattering of book learning in Albany. Making change in a barber shop chafed his active spirit. Before long he was in the tea business, running a store of his own. That venture was a big success and he soon enlarged it and became a financial leader in his line.

Wall street was the natural arena for him. Soon he was in the thick of the fight. They all spoke of him with respect down there and many of them shivered when they saw the "mole" at work. It was said recently that Brady was worth at least $25,000,000, probably more. Nobody knew; he did not tell.

Letter Written During Civil War Recalls Incidents of 50 Years Ago

A letter written during the civil war is of especial interest now since the semi-centennial of the battle of Gettysburg was celebrated only recently and the war itself was being fought just fifty years ago. The letter was written by Thomas T. Brooks of company G. Fifty-second Indiana Volunteers, who was stationed at Fort Pillow, Tenn., to his brother William who was stationed in Texas. The epistle relates to the war at that time. It is as follows:

Office Provost Marshal.
Fort Pillow, Tenn. March 2, 1863.
Brother William:

I write to you once more to let you know that we are well. I hope that I may be able this time to hear from you as I have written to you once and did not get an answer and afterwards sent word to you by a corporal of your regiment that stopped here a few minutes on the way to join his regiment. I have been anxiously looking for a letter from you for some time. All the word I get from you comes from home and they write that they have not heard from you lately, not since the fight at the Arkansas post, but understood you were not engaged there. At last accounts John Mauzy was dead and John Ferree was sick and not able to take command of his company. I fear you are all having a hard time in the land of Dixie. You haven't learned how to soldier yet. We have found out how to make soldiering easy though it's true we have a great advantage in location. Reports say the health of our army at Vicksburg is very bad. I hope that Gen. Grant will hurry the thing up, clean out Vicksburg and relieve our brave boys who are no doubt suffering tremendously. We have great confidence in our old leaders, Gen. Grant, the hero of Fort Donnellson, I wish you were no worse off than we are. We are seeing an easy time. Company G. is mounted, got our calvary saddles and bridles and are under the command of Capt. Moor of the Second Illinois calvary. He is a gay captain and a real fighting cock. We have captured several noted guerrillas since we have been here. Got Capt. Cushman's the other day and sent him to Columbus and he made his escape from the guard house so we will have to take him again, but we will never take him alive. Smith Carney has got his commission as second lieutenant in Company G. Will Wright was promoted to adjutant. Smith is a bully boy and I am satisfied. I am acting in the capacity of deputy provost marshal and a very nice and easy birth it is. They have made me orderly of the company since I have been detached. Second Sargeant Jefferson A. Cowger is acting in my place in the company as I prefer this to that. If I had accepted the appointment as orderly when Charley offered it to me before I would have been lieutenant, but all is right and I am satisfied. I will close this hoping to hear from you very soon. Give my respects to Capt. Ferree and all the boys. No more at present.

Yours Truly,
Co. G, 52d. Ind. Vol.

CALLS MULHALL WASTE OF TIME

Baltimore American, Published in Home of Lobbyist, Criticises
Congress For Investigation.

SENSATION IS ONLY IDEA

Nothing in Recital That Would Make
Even Justifiable Campaign Material.

The Baltimore American, published in the home city of Martin M. Mulhall, confessed lobbyist of the National Association of Manufacturers, who has attempted to besmirch the character of James E. Watson and a number of other men in public life, calls Mulhall a waste of time. The American severely arraigns Congress for even paying attention to the story in the following:

It is time Congress closed the gossip gap and prevented any further volume of Mulhall words flowing to no purpose. The only leakage that is being made is that of pure drivell. The so-called facts are half truths. The kind of information that is being given forth is so strongly impregnated with the idea of producing a sensation as to be discounted altogether. The alleged facts are denied by everyone whose name is associated with them. The scheme of the professed informer is so palpably one of ends that do not promote the public interest as to make the narrative one of the most sordid and debasing that has ever been recited in self-condemnation by any individual. No end of public welfare, no good of humanity, nothing that can in any wise be bettered by the recital justifies Congress any longer devoting its time to it.

The Mulhall narrative is a long-drawn-out string of half truths based on letters and citations out of connection with the facts. To sift everything to the bottom would call for at least a year of investigation and at the end nothing would be found out except that politics presents some dirty aspect and develops some liny and noisome creatures. The public is willing to admit this without more ado and let it go for that. But the kind of stuff that makes up the Mulhall narrative in pabulum for the socialist and material for the anarchist and is seized upon with avidity by the Industrial Workers of the World. It is the kind of thing that makes good carion and is fit for vultures only. It is largely a weave of imagination, of misrepresentation, of misinstruction and of contortion, so far as the medley of stuff has any character at all.

There is nothing in this recital that would even make justifiable campaign material, if of the promoters of the probe are looking to this use of it. It serves no service able end whatsoever. It merely indicates the lengths some persons will go in order to gain some personal satisfaction or profit. The public would willingly have this effort to throw contamination upon all public men and managers of private business and leaders of labor organizations brought to a sharp close and Mulhall given the rest from his gossip that would be a relief to the country.

The moving motive behind the impatience of the people with the Mulhall performances is that Congress is neglecting its legitimate duty to waste time upon a medley of twaddle. The tariff has yet to be enacted and business is waiting breathless and tip toe for opportunity to adjust itself, as well as may be, to the new conditions that may be brought about. The financial bill is at some point of consideration, and if there is to be anything done it should be done promptly or the measure ruled out for this session, as it is highly disturbing. The country is closely interested in the various matters of foreign relations that are at a more or less critical stage. The Mulhall testimony is an unwarrantable intrusion upon the public attention and invasion of the time of Congress. Surely the character of these strange confessions makes them unworthy of serious attention by the nation's lawmakers. The only effect upon the outside world is to create the impression that the United States is honeycombed with grafters and that all public men are corrupt. The only effect upon the ill-balanced and ignorant in this country is to create the impression that injustice and fraud are rampant in the nation's capital. These impressions are absolutely baseless and the fine frenzy of a dream that the members of Congress have been listening to is something with which they might well dispense. Let the members of Congress get busy with the nation's legitimate affairs, and let this investigation business to no purpose be halted. If the people knew the cost of the useless investigations they would stop them by sentiment forthwith.

Pulling a Broken Pump Rod.
Make a ring of heavy wire that will slip easily into the well casing and have a hole large enough to encircle the rod. Fasten wires loosely to the opposite sides of the ring. Lower the ring into the casing, at the same time keeping the ring as nearly level as possible until it slips over the end of the rod at least twelve inches. Pull on one wire only, and the ring will grip the rod so that it can be drawn out.

HARD GAMES ARE AHEAD OF TEAM

Arcadians Face Three in Row Which Prove Severe Test—Specials Sunday.

HOPE TO AVERAGE DEFEAT Contest With Y. M. I. and Newcastle Follow—Bunch is Now Going Good.

The Arcadians face three hard games in a row and the team hopes to cop all three of the contests. Sunday the Indianapolis Specials will be the attraction. On the following Sunday the Cincinnati Y. M. I. team will be brought back for a return game. Following the Y. M. I. game the Arcadians will have to play ball to get an even break.

The Specials are coming here Sunday with the hopes of repeating the trick of early in the season when they defeated Rushville 11 to 1. Fans who saw that game know that the Specials have a good team and to win Rushville will have to put up the sensational game that it did last Sunday against the Y. M. I.'s. In the first game A. Starkey for the Specials had it on the Rushville team in a million places and to beat him the team will have to step. Inspired with plenty of confidence after the big victory of last Sunday the Arcadians will give the Specials an awful battle.

The Y. M. I. team, anxious to get revenge for that thirteen inning defeat of last Sunday, asked for another game and were booked for August 3. The team on this trip here hopes to turn the table on Rushville and as the fans know that the Y. M. I. had some team a large crowd should be out.

The one big game of the season is the Newcastle game. The Arcadians will go there August 10 and Newcastle will play a return game here August 24. These two team always play their best game when opposing each other and the Arcadians are confident of winning this year. Avery or Jones will work in all the games for the Rushville team. The Arcadians are now going good and Sunday's victory made five straight games won and the team promises not to stop at that mark.

The Indianapolis Specials have practically the same line up as when they played here the first time and the game Sunday should be equally as good as the one last Sunday. Whichever way the game goes the winner will know there has been a battle. The Specials will line up as follows: Mitchell, catch; A. Starkey, pitch; Bullock, first; Essex, second; Bruder, third; Faucett, short; W. Starkey, left; Lambert, center and Burk, right.

Will Dugan was the first to bring cream to the new creamery at its opening this morning. The cream was from thirteen cows and tested 4½ per cent butter fat.

of the gravity. When the water is above the pipe entering the reservoir, it would naturally fill the perpendicular pipe and then flow on into the horizontal pipe connected at the L.

The whole question seems to hinge on the one fact which can't be determined unless the water is low in the reservoir. The fact needed is to know the place where the feed pipe from the pumps enters the reservoir. If it is below seven and a half feet, there should have been a fire pressure last Sunday morning. Otherwise there should not, according to Engineer Joyce, because he says when the pumps have to life the water they can't force it into the mains above twenty pounds pressure. At least they did not last Sunday morning.

This fact was substantiated today: that there was no water "wasted" during the fire Sunday morning. When an engineer goes on duty at the plant, he takes the stand of the water in the reservoir and makes a record of it which is kept at the plant. This record reveals that when Richard Beale went on duty as an engineer Saturday at noon, there was just four and a half feet of water in the reservoir. The pumps lay inactive until four o'clock in the afternoon when a fire alarm came in. He says that he got some pressure into the mains. Again before he went off duty at midnight Saturday night he primed the one pump and it was in prime when Engineer Joyce came on.

The record further shows that at twelve o'clock Saturday night when the change was made, there was seven and a half feet of water in the reservoir. When Engineer Joyce went off duty at twelve o'clock Sunday noon, there was ten feet of water in the reservoir, a gain of two and a half feet during the twelve hours in which the fire took place, according to the records. If nothing else, the records clearly demonstrate that none of the water was "wasted" while the Masonic block and Capp's residence was burning down.

Engineer Joyce was asked why the second pump was not started Sunday morning when he couldn't prime the one. He said he thought both pumps worked from the same prime pipe, but he was not sure. He told the reporter to ask Engineer Richard Beale, who said that was the case.

Engineer Joyce says he was misunderstood yesterday. He declares that he said it was reported to him that the men on duty early Saturday morning reported to him that they investigated and found the water gates open, but that they did not close them.

Mayor Black said after the fire that he gave the orders to let the fire engines take care of any fires that might happen during the night. The fire company evidently had not been notified of any such order because when the alarm came in a hose was attached to the water hydrant, and when it was found there was no pressure, the engine was pressed into service. Supt. Brown says the arrangement was for the engine to do the work and he did not turn on any fire pressure because the orders were never reversed.

GRUB-STAKING

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: W. J. Bryan has announced his purpose to issue the Commoner monthly instead of weekly hereafter. The pastime of writing editorials will thereby not be interfered with by his onerous duties as secretary of State or his grub-staking campaigns on the chautauqua platforms.

HAD THE RIGHT IDEA.

Those sailor boys who tore down the Socialist flag in Seattle and nailed up the Stars and Stripes in its stead certainly had the right idea of the fitness of things in this country. There is not room for two flags in the United States.—Greensburg Review.
